'Shadowhunters' bids farewell with a supersized finale

By Jay Bobbin

"Shadowhunters" is ending, but many of its fans don't want to let it go.

Since Freeform announced the fantasy-adventure's cancellation, devotees not only have lobbied for its continuation — via a SaveShadowhunters social-media campaign, plus billboards and a banner flown over Netflix's Los Angeles headquarters — but also have invoked the show's theme of inclusiveness by making a sizable donation to The Trevor Project that Freeform parent company Disney matched.

Katherine McNamara stars in the series finale of "Shadowhunters," Monday on Freeform.

The "Shadowhunters" finale is sizable itself, since Freeform gives the last episode a two-and-a-half-hour slot Monday, May 6. Adapted from Cassandra Clare's "The Mortal Instruments" book series, the saga has followed the journey of numerous characters ... but principally that of Clary Fray, a young woman whose life was upended by her discovery that she is a Shadowhunter, a demon-battling combination of human and angel.

Katherine McNamara, who has played Clary for the three seasons of the GLAAD Award-winning show, expresses her appreciation of "people out in the world who are as invested in it as I am in creating it. It's really amazing, and it's been the biggest blessing with this series, especially with it coming from book material that I know is important to so many people."

McNamara concurs that the success of "Shadowhunters" can be linked largely to its representation of so many lives and lifestyles. "That's a really big part of why fantasy series are so popular," she reasons. "Even if the characters aren't human, they're going through very human struggles, and it allows viewers to look at their own experiences objectively."

"'Shadowhunters' is such a diverse show," adds McNamara, "and I've seen it in the fandom. They've created this beautiful space for anyone to feel loved and accepted and seen. And it's only fitting, because that's ultimately what the message of the show is: No matter what you're made of, or what blood runs through your veins, you can be a hero."

McNamara actually has had roles in multiple fantasy franchises. Besides "Shadowhunters," she appeared in the two "Maze Runner" movie sequels, and she also has been playing Mia Smoak (alias Blackstar) — Oliver Queen and Felicity Smoak's daughter from the future — on The CW's "Arrow."

While McNamara allows that she's "sad" to see "Shadowhunters" conclude, she notes, "The fact that we were able to end it in a way that we honored the show, and honored the fandom and everything that we've been building for so long, was amazing. Every person in every department has been committed to making the best show possible, and we've had the chance to give it one last hurrah. I think the finale is so wonderful and so rich, I can't wait for people to see it."

Chris Harrison will root for a rival at the Daytime Emmys

By Jay Bobbin

Though he's pleased to be a Daytime Emmy nominee again, Chris Harrison readily states that he wouldn't mind seeing a certain someone else win in his category.

The "Bachelor" franchise staple is, for the second consecutive year, a contender for outstanding game show host — for the syndicated "Who Wants to Be a Millionaire" — in the 46th annual event, to be streamed live on the website of the National Academy of Television Arts & Sciences (emmyonline.tv) plus www.KNEKT.tv, Facebook, Twitter and YouTube from the Pasadena (Calif.) Civic Auditorium on Sunday, May 5. Mario Lopez ("Extra") and Sheryl Underwood ("The Talk") again serve as hosts.

"If the first (nomination) was 'lucky,' maybe the second one's not a fluke," muses the genial Harrison, now four years into his run as the weekday "Millionaire" successor to Meredith Vieira, Cedric the Entertainer and Terry Crews. (Regis Philbin only hosted the primetime ABC version.) The program itself is up for the Daytime Emmy for outstanding game show.

"It used to be that people would come up to me and it would be about 'The Bachelor,' clearly," Harrison confirms. "But now, more and more I hear, 'I watch 'Millionaire' every day.' And I love hearing that I personally have broken through as

'that guy,' and that people are either finding the show for the first time or finding it again. It hadn't been nominated for an Emmy in a long time, and we've brought it back to where it is."

Still, Harrison is very mindful this year of a rival for the host award. "Last year," he recalls, "there was Wayne Brady ('Let's Make a Deal') and Alex Trebek ('Jeopardy!') and Pat Sajak ('Wheel of Fortune'), and those guys are back in this year. (Also nominated is John Michael Higgins of GSN's 'America Says.') And obviously, we've heard the sad news of what Alex is fighting, stage 4 pancreatic cancer.

"I had the unbelievable honor of meeting him last year (at the Daytime Emmys)," Harrison notes. "He sat in front of me, and I made it a point to introduce myself and talk to him, because he's a legend. I'm a student of the game, and I've watched Alex for decades, along with everybody else. He's as good as it gets, and when I heard the (medical) news, I was gutted. I can't imagine that show without him and his snarkiness, his brilliance, his sense of humor ... all of it.

"I'm wishing him well and praying for him, and if anybody but Alex Trebek is named (as the game-show-host winner) that night — and if he is, if anybody but him gets up on that stage — I will tear the building apart."

SPRINGTIME HAS ARRIVED

The days are getting longer. The birds are chirping. The trees are blooming. We just experienced Easter Sunday. These are all welcome signs that Spring has finally arrived. Although some of the recent days have been cool and windy, officially, winter has left us.

This is always a special time of year. Our Recreation Division's programs start to kick into high gear. Our parks become hubs of activity with Bayonne residents of all ages enjoying the many amenities we work so hard to offer. We are fortunate to have more than two dozen parks in our community, from Mayor Denis P. Collins Park by the Kill Van Kull to Mayor Richard A. Rutkowski Park at the northern end of Bayonne.

Since becoming mayor, I have been especially proud of the efforts of our Recreation Division to provide programming that caters to every part of Bayonne's population. I hope with a new season upon us you will take advantage of all that we have to offer. I encourage you to visit our Recreation website to find something that suits your interests. Spring activities include Buddy Baseball, the Kids Travel Club, the Adult Travel Club, Chess, Senior Women's Softball, Men's Outdoor Basketball, T-Ball Squirts, and Soccer Squirts. Women's softball season started on April 23. Men's outdoor basketball season will begin on May 28. T-Ball Squirts and Soccer Squirts will both start on April 16. For more details, please visit the Recreation Division website at www.bayonnerec.com.

Buddy Baseball will start its fifth season on Saturday, May 4. Opening day will begin with a kick-off breakfast, followed by a parade, opening ceremonies, and then the games. Buddy Baseball will include 112 children.

This past weekend, we had an Earth Day clean-up in Bayonne. In case you missed it, it's never too late to start cleaning up around your neighborhood. Now that the snow and ice of winter are gone (we hope), it is a great time to clean up around Bayonne's homes and businesses. During the winter, some litter may have accumulated around your property. It would take just a few minutes of work to remove and dispose of that litter. Please do this for an elderly or handicapped neighbor, relative, or friend. Every week, potential new residents and investors come to Bayonne. Let's help attract them by keeping our community clean.

BEST DAYTIME TALK HOSTS

By Jay Bobbin

Mike Douglas In terms of friendly hosts whose weekday talk shows are built for fun, Douglas was the grandfather. Operating from Philadelphia for most of his run, he also could delve into the serious... as he did with the real-life spy who allegedly was the model for James Bond, to cite one example.

Phil Donahue Wearing his heart on his sleeve (just ask wife Marlo Thomas) and thoroughly engaging his audience, both in the studio and by phone, were Donahue trademarks in topical conversations for the better part of 30 years.

Regis Philbin Years after his departure, daytime television still doesn't seem the same without the genial, often comically flustered presence whose on-air partners over a record-setting run included Kathie Lee Gifford and the continuing Kelly Ripa (who' now partnered with Ryan Seacrest).

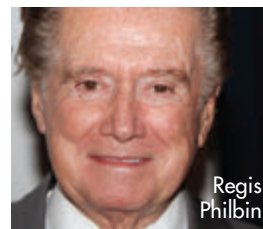

Oprah Winfrey Like she wasn't going to be on this list? Over the course of 25 years, Winfrey became the owner of daytime talk, surpassing such acknowledged idols as Donahue in making the form her own ... and truly reshaping countless lives by virtue of who and what she showcased.

Dr. Phil (McGraw) Got a problem? No matter what it is, this Oprah-mentored psychologist has been more than willing to talk about it candidly over the course of cementing a high-rated daytime hit of his own.

Ellen DeGeneres Basically inheriting the good-time-host" mantle that once belonged to O'Donnell, the comedian who loves to dance brings a light touch to her celebrity encounters ... while also pulling heartstrings with the literal generosity she has shown to many of her fans and guests.

Rachael Ray If there ever were doubts that cooking and talking can go together, the long-time Food Network personality has dissolved those with her success both in the kitchen and at the chat table.

HOLLYWOOD

By Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD — Tom Hanks has a couple of big roles coming up, starring as Mr. Rogers in "A Beautiful Day in the Neighborhood," with Wendy Makkena, Matthew Rhys and Chris Cooper (out Nov. 22), then transforming himself into Colonel Parker, the manager of "The King of Rock and Roll" Elvis Presley, for director Baz Luhrmann. Among Luhrmann's hit films are "Moulin Rouge" (2001), "Australia" (2008) and "The Great Gatsby" (2013). He recently completed the Netflix series "The Get Down," about the birth of hip-hop, and you can be sure this Elvis film will be like no other. Meanwhile, the release of Hanks' war film "Greyhound," with Elisabeth Shue, has been pushed back to May 2020.

You knew after the $20 million low-budget film "A Quiet Place" pulled in $340 million at the box office that there would be "A Quiet Place 2." John Krasinsky again writes, directs and stars with wife Emily Blunt, plus Millicent Simmonds and Noah Jupe (as their children). But it's likely the film will zero in more on other survivors, including Gillian Murphy, for a May 2020 opening.

Denzel Washington will next take on the title role of a Scottish lord in William Shakespeare's "Macbeth," aided and abetted by "Three Billboards" Oscar-winning best actress Frances McDormand as Lady MacBeth.

Chris Hemsworth has landed another franchise with the reboot of "Men In Black: International," co-starring Rebecca Ferguson, Liam Neeson and Emma Thompson, dropping June 14, and "Dhaka," about a mercenary hired to rescue a Bangladeshi businessman's kidnapped son.

Benedict Cumberbatch, now starring as Doctor Strange in "Avengers: Endgame," is going to war as Greville Wynne in "Iron Bark," with "Mrs. Maisel" Rachel Brosnahan, a Cold War drama about two businessmen who aid the CIA in penetrating the Soviet nuclear program. That's followed by "1917," in which he and Colin Firth are two young soldiers during World War I. Sam Mendes (Kate Winslet's ex) is directing for a Christmas Day opening. Patrick Schwarzenegger, son of Arnold, stars as the imaginary friend of a troubled college freshman in the thriller "Daniel Isn't Real," with Mary Stewart Masterson. The film screened last month at The South by Southwest Film Festival and is looking for a distributor. Patrick is now filming the sci-fi thriller "Warning," with "Magic Mike" star Alex Pettyfer.

Tom Hanks

Meryl Streep has completed the reboot of "Little Women," as Aunt March, with Saoirse Ronan, Timothee Chalamet, Laura Dern and Emma Watson (due Christmas Day), and Netflix's "The Laundromat," which Steven Soderbergh is directing, with Gary Oldman, Antonio Banderas, Alex Pettyfer, Will Forte and David Schwimmer. It's about a group of journalists who unearth 11.5 million files linking the world most powerful figures to secret bank accounts as they attempt to avoid paying taxes. From "Little Women" to big tax dodgers. Sounds like D.C. today!

Actress Marie Wilson on her journey to a plant-based diet

by George Dickie

Anyone considering trying a plant-based diet might want to heed the words of Marie Wilson, a veteran actress who swore off animal proteins in her teens and hasn't looked back.

"You feel amazing," she says. "It's interesting how when you take a week, you just try it for a week and then you go back, it's amazing the difference you feel between the two. ... I have more energy. I have more alertness. You just feel better and your body can process it better, too."

Wilson, who stars in "Ladies of the Lake" and its follow-up "Ladies of the Lake: Return to Avalon," both of which are currently streaming on Amazon, has a long history with plant-based diets, longer in fact than her acting credits, which include stints on the daytime dramas "General Hospital" (1999-2003), "Port Charles" (1999-2003), "As the World Turns" (2005-10) and "Days of our Lives" (2014-16), as well as roles in the movies "Say You Will" (2017) and "To the Beat!" (2018).

She originally went vegetarian at 17 because that's what her friends were doing and then later when she tried a hamburger, she found it difficult to digest and painful. So out of necessity, animal fats were out and plants were in. For good.

These days, she's a lover of salads and quinoa, which she says is delicious and a great source of protein.

"Quinoa has more protein than even meat protein," she notes, "so that's been very enlightening. And also my stomach and my body appreciate it more because I can't really break down meat protein. ... So I've just been using quinoa with a lot of dishes and salads, and instead of rice you do a quinoa dish. There are so many choices, especially nowadays. It's not like we're living in the '50s, where it was a raw carrot and you're done."

As for advice she'd give to prospective vegans or vegetarians, Wilson is succinct.

"Be open-minded," she asserts, "because a lot of people have this judgment on what it's like and what the food tastes like and I think when we start judging anything in life, we kind of put limits up and it kind of cuts off great opportunities that might be available to you. So I think just being open-minded and trying something. And there's stuff I've tried and didn't like.

"You won't love everything," she adds, "but that's the fun of experimenting and trying new things and just seeing what happens."

Hour" while they were married, and "The Sonny and Cher Show" after their divorce. In-between those, Cher starred in the simply titled "Cher" (which was for CBS, as were the other two shows). Meanwhile, Sonny moved over to ABC during the same period for the short-lived "Sonny Comedy Revue." Though it fared well, Cher let "Cher" go after roughly one year, saying then that headlining a weekly series on her own was "more than I could handle."

Q: Is Cote de Pablo returning to "NCIS"?

A: As of this writing, that's still uncertain — though with the CBS series' recent in-voking of her character Ziva David again, it's been pointed out by some that it would be odd to reference her just casually at this point (and more than once) without the show's makers having a longer game in mind.

With "NCIS" already renewed for a 17th season, there will be time to make good on that supposed promise. De Pablo has been acting in other projects — most recently, a movie called "Seneca" — and she apparently doesn't have any long-term performing commitments. Therefore, as we often say here, never say "never" ... especially since the actress herself has noted, "As long as a character doesn't die, the character can always come back."

Q: Why is Luke Perry's name still in the credits for "Riverdale"? — Matt Hayes, via e-mail

A: The producers are doing that as a conscious, ongoing tribute to The CW series' late co-star. They have said that for as long as the show runs, whatever the fate of his character Fred Andrews (which had not been revealed when this column was written), Perry will continue to receive an on-air credit as a "Riverdale" cast member.

Q: Michael Strahan has a lot of time on ABC now, between "Good Morning America" and "Strahan & Sara." Will he still keep hosting "The $100,000 Pyramid," too? — Jean Forrest, Providence, R.I.

A: He will, confirmed by the fact that he still will be in that role when the game-show revival starts its fourth season on that network June 9. Strahan has a vested interest in continuing that job, since he's also an executive producer of the contest.

Q: Will "Salvation" be back this summer? — Sue Holbrook, Reading, Pa.

A: The CBS sci-fi-drama's run came to an end with its Season 2 finale last year. However, its creator-producers will have a new gig in the coming fall season: They'll become the new executive producers of The CW's reboot of "Charmed," so we wouldn't be at all surprised to see some alumni of the "Salvation" cast turn up on that series, at least in guest roles.
